

Amy Maccherone Named to New Orleans Magazine 2026 Top Women in Law List

FormanWatkins is proud to announce that Amy Maccherone has been named to the New Orleans Magazine's 2026 Top Women in Law list for her work in Mass Tort Litigation/Class Actions. This recognition highlights Maccherone as one of the leading women in the New Orleans legal community.

Maccherone has built her practice on the belief that every challenge has a solution. She represents clients in complex civil litigation, with a focus on mass tort and class action matters and works persistently to develop effective strategies that serve her clients' goals. She is actively involved in all stages of litigation, from trial preparation through the appellate process.

"I'm honored to be recognized by my peers," said Maccherone. "It is especially meaningful to be included among such an accomplished group of attorneys."

The Top Women in Law list is compiled through a peer-review process conducted by Professional Research Services. Licensed attorneys in the New Orleans area nominate fellow attorneys in specific practice areas, and honorees are selected based on survey results and verification of good standing with the Louisiana State Bar Association.