

FormanWatkins Attorneys Featured at National Asbestos Litigation Conference

Malissa Wilson, a Partner in the FormanWatkins Jackson office, and Margaret McLaughlin, an Associate in the firm's New Orleans office, were featured speakers at Perrin Conferences' National Asbestos Litigation Conference on Sept. 14-15 in Charleston, South Carolina.

Malissa served as a featured panelist during the Women's Symposium Lunch, where she gave thoughtful insights to fellow women and leaders in the industry on work-life integration in the post-Covid era, with topics including effective time management, mentoring the next generation, and balancing professional and personal life. Margaret participated in the Non-Traditional Jurisdictions and Exposures panel and dived into which non-traditional jurisdictions are experiencing increased filings, recent cases with non-traditional exposures, atypical job sites and emerging areas of asbestos exposures.

The conference program included both national and jurisdictional asbestos litigation updates and offered attendees the opportunity to attend numerous informative and dynamic panel discussions, presentations, and demonstrations on a variety of topics related to asbestos litigation. Speakers and attendees included many of the nation's premiere plaintiff and defense attorneys, judges, and insurance professionals.

Malissa Wilson speaks during the Women's Symposium Luncheon.

Margaret McLaughlin (third from left) speaks on panel.